Cambria Solutions Named Top California IT Company of the Year at National Conference of Latinos in Information and Technology Association (LISTA)

SACRAMENTO, Calif. – April 1, 2015 – Cambria Solutions, Inc., a national information technology and management consulting firm, has been named the top California IT Company of the Year. The award was presented to Cambria Solutions founder and CEO, Robert Rodriguez at the Latinos in Information and Technology Association (LISTA) 8th Annual Emerging Technology Leadership Summit Series Kickoff and National Latino Technology Achievers luncheon hosted by the LISTA Nor Cal Tech Latino Council at the Sheraton Grand Hotel in Sacramento, Calif. The 8th annual summit featured notable guest speakers, including top government officials.

“Cambria Solutions is among the important group of technology leaders in California and business trendsetters who happen to be Latino and who have shown a commitment to excellence and dedication to corporate America and the Latino community,” said Jose Marquez-Leon, National President, CEO and Founder of LISTA and lead advocate on state and federal issues related to the role of Latinos in the technology sector.

“At Cambria, there are many inspiring individual stories that make up the collective American dream, and I am only one version of it,” said Rodriguez. “We believe in providing opportunities for our people and extending opportunities to our communities. We are deeply honored and humbled by this recognition.”

Rodriguez noted that Cambria Solutions is launching a paid internship program for college students this summer to expose the next generation of leaders to IT in both government and health care. The intent is to use the internship program as a model for their offices throughout the United States, with a goal of having 100 students complete the internship program by 2020.
